Been away for a while

Posted by Chris1GCPI - 12 Dec 2011 02:56

Hello everyone! I must apologize for my long absence. The last two months have been devastating for our team. Billy and I who are both leaders of the team have fallen on some bad times health wise. Billy has cancer and is currently undergoing chemo & radiation treatments daily for the past few weeks. I had knee surgery back in early November. It was supposed to be a cut & dry Arthroscopic knee surgery, but it wasn't. It turns out I have a rare bone disease called Osteochondritis Dissecans. The future prognosis is not very good. I will have to have more surgery, more time off from work, and more time away from doing paranormal cases.

I wish that I had better news to tell, but sadly I don't right now. We continue to support each other in our recovery process and with the help from our families & friends we will get though this.

==========

Re: Been away for a while

Posted by crystalcross - 12 Dec 2011 03:00

Our thoughts are with both of you, and we're sending good wishes and prayers.

I think we all realize that as paranormal researchers we're all always susceptible to negative influences. But nobody ever anticipates any health issues, so they can be devastating at the very least. Try to keep a positive spirit, and we look forward to a time when you can again go forward and investigate.

Keep strong!

==========