If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?

Posted by Keith - 05 Oct 2011 01:07

Hello everyone,

I hear now and then of a Spirit attaching itself to an individual and showing up at home with them.

I know what I think about this but I am curious as to what others here think.

I find asking questions sometimes is enlightening and getting others perspectives adds to my knowledge greatly.

I know the talk will go to the negative Spirit side but I am also curious as to your thoughts on the positive side of the spirit world following us home.

I believe there are far more good spirits than bad spirits. But, I may just be naïve.

What do you think?

Thanks for your thoughts.

Keith

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?

Posted by Keith - 05 Oct 2011 18:50

Ocean County Paranormal Research wrote:

Yes i Believe That Spirits Can Follow You Home As Well...But I think It's Rare.

As For Animals Like Dogs Being Sensitive I believe They Are Just For The Fact

That They Do Not Know, Not To Be.Much Like A Little Child Would Be.But As With Some Not All People As We Grow We Become A Little Egnorent To This Phenomenon.

Ocean County Paranormal Research,

Thanks for the post and opinion. I love to watch the faces of those who have never experienced the paranormal. When at that first moment they look at your and say. “What just happened.”

It's hard to argue that the paranormal doesn't exist when you are standing in a hall way with the nearest person to you is five feet away and someone whispers in your ear, or touches their arm or hair.

My home is over 200 years old so there is a lot of history here. We have a little boy in a wool coat that visits us now and then. We have had guests mention the boy in the back yard playing in the sand dozens of times only to find no one there when a minute later we go back out to see who he is. Their faces tell the story. We aren't sure who he is because he never speaks but his cloths are from a time long ago.

He is a good boy.

Keith

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?

Posted by Keith - 05 Oct 2011 19:09

_____

TressesOfNephth,

You are right they (Pets) don't know that spirits don't exist so they just react. My Grandmother use to talk with her daughter that passed away at the age of 8 from TB some 50 years earlier. When I asked her who the little girl was she was talking to she smiled and said your aunt Sammy (Samantha) She talks with Grampa and the others in heaven all the time. Grandma would say.

Grandma buried 7 out of ten children and told me after the 7th She would burry no more of her children. She said Grampa came and told her it was time to come with him. She died three weeks later. I told my mother what Grandma told me and my mother looked at me like I wished Grandma would die. I never spoke of any encounters after that with anyone for over 30 years. Only to find when I did I was not alone with these visits.

Life is simple until you must hide what is normal to you.

Keith

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?

Posted by undertaker1 - 05 Oct 2011 20:37

_____

Spirits can follow you home but this doesn't mean they are evil or bad spirits. There are many spirits that can attach themselves to anything as tress said her friend from school. It isn't that this is negative but i would suggest allowing these spirits to crossover or help them cross because they need to find their resting place.

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?

Posted by Keith - 06 Oct 2011 00:28

_____

undertaker1 wrote:

Spirits can follow you home but this doesn't mean they are evil or bad spirits. There are many spirits that can attach themselves to anything as tress said her friend from school. It isn't that this is negative but i would suggest allowing these spirits to crossover or help them cross because they need to find their resting place.

Thanks for the response undertaker1

You know...

I wonder sometimes if all spirits are lost spirits. Who is to say, we really don't know that to be so with every spirit. Some may just want to communicate. Or come back perhaps to send a message to a loved one, or maybe just coming back to a place that may have had a special spot in their life on earth.

In order to rest they must they find what they are looking for? What if they are not searching for anything but has chosen to follow us home for another reason which we may not ever guess?

I am new to much of this so sorry if the questions are redundant and answered elsewhere.

Keith

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?
Posted by TressesOfNephthys - 06 Oct 2011 01:14

_____

Well you're right--not all ghosts are lost. Some choose to stay for one reason or another. Maybe they liked a place and to them, that place is heaven. Also, its easy to confuse earthbound souls with those on the other side who also like to come visit sometimes. They aren't lost at all, just want to say hello or pass a message along.

==========

Re: If a spirit followed me home. Can I keep it?
Posted by Keith - 06 Oct 2011 10:16

_____

TressesOfNephthys wrote:

Well you're right--not all ghosts are lost. Some choose to stay for one reason or another. Maybe they liked a place and to them, that place is heaven. Also, its easy to confuse earthbound souls with those on the other side who also like to come visit sometimes. They aren't lost at all, just want to say hello or pass a message along.

TressesOfNephthys,

Thanks for the reply.

Although I am new to the Hunt aspect I have been around the Paranormal experiences as far back as I can remember. I had never given much thought to the Spirit hunt aspects for I never needed to hunt for spirit interactions. As you well know TressesOfNephthys, The hunt adds a completely different aspect to what knowledge’s are already there. To "look for" Sprits lends us to experience those spirits out of our normal lines of thoughts and dealings with spirits.

I find often the Spirits look for us once on site. Almost as if we carry a beacon around in the dark and they are drawn in to that light. Odd? Perhaps not.

I often find the experience different from others who do this. Placing those experiences into words is not as easy as one might think, at least for me.

So as for the question “do they visit or are they bound here.” I ask them, "Why are you here tonight?" If they want me to know I will know. You see, I believe, they don't have to be part of this dimension if they choose not to, for the most part. There is so much more to the Spirit World than we can measure with a meter. This I know.

I think people don't realize there is so much more to death than Heaven and Hell. I know this is what we all learned in Bible Class and I don’t dispute the existence of each destination. It is life that binds us here not death, in my view.

Anyhow TressesOfNephthys, thanks again for the posts and your perspectives. I agree with much you have written.

Keith

==========